Little Episodes Live in Brighton

Little Episodes follow up the outstanding success of their Brighton launch (which featured performances from The Libertines' Carl Barat, Lux and Sadie Frost) with the first of their monthly nights at The Prince Albert, Trafalgar St, Brighton, on 7 October 2011.

This month we have performances from Hollowmoon, The Valkarys, The Skuzzies, The Harrison Brothers and poet and writer Nina Antonia. There will also be Open Mic for up and coming poets and musicians to showcase their talents alongside these established acts.

Little Episodes, the artists collective that believes all talent is equal regardless of commercial success, will also have a book stall selling writing from their members and will be exhibiting works by local artists.

Lucie Barât, founder of Little Episodes, said: "These days, the artistic and entertainment industries can generate seriously big money. While this may be palatable enough for the lucky few that get picked to 'succeed', it is alienating and depressing for the hoards of equally talented creatives lost in a sea of penniless artists."

Beri Allen-Miller, one of the youngest Little Episodes members, said: "I really enjoy being a part of the Little Episodes community. It's great to be able to read other peoples writing, look at their artwork and potentially publish my own works with LE. The events are always fun as you get to meet the great artists you see/read/hear on the website."

The event starts at 7pm and you can purchase tickets, copies of Little Episodes anthologies and find out more about Little Episodes or become a member at www.littleepisodes.org
